Address EACH section separately in your Critical Critiques BEGINNING with #1: Main Points!
Discussion showing in-depth, critical thinking is key to the Critical Critiques! Integrate what you are reading and learning in class with your own personal experiences.

1. Identify and Discuss the Main Points of all the readings or DVD. This is the Main Body of your Critical Critique! Identify each of the readings as you discuss the main points. Each reading has multiple main points.
   - Identify and discuss main points of all the readings/DVD
   - Explore below the surface

2. Seeing the commonalities of the assigned readings/DVD’s, as well as where they may differ; This section requires you to have read and discussed the main points in ALL of the readings. Be specific in your discussion of how the readings are connected.
   - Discusses the commonalities and differences of the readings/DVD
   - Explore the “why” in what you found

3. Exploring (researching) answers to questions you may have for clarification; If you are critically critiquing the readings, many questions will be raised. Take one of your questions and research to find answers. ALWAYS document/site your research.
   - Identified questions regarding the readings/DVD
   - Explore/research answers to your questions
   - Summarize what you found

4. Making the connection of all this new knowledge with your own experiences and the journey you are on this semester - becoming an anti-bias educator.
This is where you make the connection with your own experiences and journey.
   - Connect the readings/DVD to your own experiences
   - Discuss how it will help you on your journey on becoming an anti-bias educator
